TIME AND SCENE

The royal house of Thebes. Double doors dominate the façade; a stone altar stands at the center of the stage.

Many years have passed since OEDIPUS solved the riddle of the Sphinx and ascended the throne of Thebes, and now a plague has struck the city. A procession of PRIESTS enters; suppliants, broken and despondent, they carry branches wound in wool and lay them on the altar. The doors open. GUARDS assemble. OEDIPUS comes forward, majestic but for a telltale limp, and slowly views the condition of his people.

OEDIPUS: Oh my children, the new blood of ancient Thebes, why are you here?
Huddling at my altar,
praying before me, your branches wound in wool.
Our city reeks with the smoke of burning incense,
5 rings with cries for the Healer and wailing for the dead.
I thought it wrong, my children, to hear the truth from others, messengers. Here I am myself--- you all know me, the world knows my fame:
I am Oedipus.

(Helping a PRIEST to his feet)

Speak up, old man. Your years, 10 your dignity--- you should speak for the others.
Why here and kneeling, what preys upon you so?
Some sudden fear? Some strong desire?
You can trust me. I am ready to help,
I'll do anything. I would be blind to misery 15 not to pity my people kneeling at my feet.
PRIEST: O Oedipus, king of the land, our greatest power!
You see us before you now, men of all ages clinging to your altars. Here are boys, still too weak to fly from the nest, 20 and here the old, bowed down with the years,
the holy ones--- a priest of Zeus myself--- and here
the picked, unmarried men, the young hope of Thebes.
And all the rest, your great family gathers now, branches wreathed, massing in the squares, 25 kneeling before the two temples of queen Athena or the river-shrine where the embers glow and die and Apollo sees the future in the ashes.
Our city---
look around you, see with your own eyes--- our ship pitches wildly, cannot lift her head 30 from the depths, the red waves of death...
Thebes is dying. A blight on the fresh crops and the rich pastures, cattle sicken and die,

and the women die in labor, children stillborn,
and the plague, the fiery god of fever hurls down on the city, his lightning slashing through us--- 35 raging plague in all its vengeance, devastating the house of Cadmus! And black Death luxuriates in the raw, wailing miseries of Thebes.

Now we pray to you. You cannot equal the gods, your children know that, bending at your altar. 40
But we do rate you first of men,
both in the common crises of our lives and face-to-face encounters with the gods.
You freed us from the Sphinx, you came to Thebes and cut us loose from the bloody tribute we had paid 45 that harsh, brutal singer. We taught you nothing, no skill, no extra knowledge, still you triumphed.
A god was with you, so they say, and we believe it--- you lifted up our lives.

So now again,
Oedipus, king, we bend to you, your power--- 50
We implore you, all of us on our knees:
find us strength, rescue! Perhaps you've heard the voice of a god or something from other men, Oedipus... what do you know?
The man of experience--- you see it every day--- 55 his plans will work in a crisis, his first of all.

Act now--- we beg you, best of men, raise up our city!
Act, defend yourself, your former glory!
Your country calls you savior now for your zeal, your action years ago. 60 Never let us remember of your reign:
you helped us stand, only to fall once more.
Oh raise up our city, set us on our feet.
The omens were good that day brought us joy---
Be the same man today! 65
Rule our land, you know you have the power,
but rule a land of the living, not a wasteland.
Ship and towered city are nothing, stripped of men alive within it, living all as one.

OEDIPUS: My children,
I pity you. I see--- how could I fail to see 70 what longings bring you here? Well I know you are sick to death, all of you, but sick as you are, not one is sick as I.

Your pain strikes each of you alone, each 75 in the confines of himself, no other. But my spirit grieves for the city, for myself and all of you.
I wasn't asleep, dreaming. You haven't wakened me--- I have wept through the nights, you must know that, groping, laboring over many paths of thought.
80 After a painful search I found one cure:
I acted at once. I sent Creon,
My wife's own brother, to Delphi--- Apollo the Prophet's oracle--- to learn what I might do or say to save our city.

85 Today's the day. When I count the days gone by it torments me... what is he doing?
Strange, he's late, he's gone too long.
But once he returns, then, then I'll be a traitor
If I do not do all the god makes clear.

90 PRIEST: Timely words. The men over there are signaling--- Creon's just arriving.
OEDIPUS: (Sighting CREON, then turning to the altar.) Lord Apollo, let him come with a lucky word of rescue, Shining like his eyes!
PRIEST: Welcome news, I think--- he's crowned, look,
95 and the laurel wreath is bright with berries.
OEDIPUS: We'll soon see. He's close enough to hear---

(Enter CREON from the side; his face is shaded with a wreath.)

Creon, prince, my kinsman, what do you bring us?
What message from the gods?

CREON: Good news.
I tell you even the hardest things to bear, 100 if they should turn out well, all would be well.
OEDIPUS: Of course, but what were the god's words? There's no hope
and nothing to fear in what you've said so far.
CREON: If you want my report in the presence of these people...

(Pointing to the PRIESTS while drawing OEDIPUS toward the palace.)

I'm ready now, or we might go inside.

OEDIPUS: Speak out, 105 speak to us all. I grieve for these, my people, far more than I fear for my own life.

CREON: Very well,
I will tell you what I heard from the god.
Apollo commands us--- he was quite clear---
"Drive the corruption from the land, 110 don't harbor it any longer, past all cure,
don't nurse it in your soil--- root it out!"

OEDIPUS: How can we cleanse ourselves--- what rites?
What's the source of the trouble?
CREON: Banish the man, or pay back blood with blood.

115 Murder sets the plague-storm on the city.

OEDIPUS: Whose murder?
Whose fate does Apollo bring to light?

CREON: Our leader,
my lord, was once a man named Laius,
before you came and put us straight on course.

OEDIPUS: I know---
or so I've heard. I never saw the man myself.

CREON: Well, he was killed, and Apollo commands us now- 120
he could not be more clear,
"Pay the killers back—whoever is responsible."

OEDIPUS: Where on earth are they? Where to find it now,
The trail of the ancient guilt so hard to trace?

CREON: "Here in Thebes," he said. 125
Whatever is sought for can be caught, you know, whatever is neglected slips away.

OEDIPUS: But where,
in the palace, the fields or foreign soil,
where did Laius meet his bloody death?

CREON: He went to consult an oracle, Apollo said, 130
and he set out and never came home again.

OEDIPUS: No messenger, no fellow-traveler saw what happened?
Someone to cross-examine?

CREON: No,
They were all killed but one. He escaped, terrified, he could tell us nothing clearly, 135 nothing of what he saw—just one thing.

OEDIPUS: What's that?

One small think could hold the key to it all,
a small beginning give us grounds for hope.

CREON: He said thieves attacked them—a whole band, not single-handed, cut King Laius down. 140

OEDIPUS: A thief,
so daring, so wild, he'd kill a king? Impossible, unless conspirators paid him off in Thebes.

CREON: We suspected as much. But with Laius dead
no leader appeared to help us in our troubles.

OEDIPUS: Trouble? Your king was murdered—royal blood! 145
What stopped you from tracking down the killer
then and there?

CREON: The singing, riddling Sphinx.
She... persuaded us to let the mystery go and concentrate on what lay at our feet.

OEDIPUS: No,
I'll start again—I'll bring it all to light myself! 150
Apollo is right, and so are you, Creon, to turn our attention back to the murdered man.

Now you have me to fight for you, you'll see:

I am the land's avenger by all rights,
and Apollo's champion too. 155

But not to assist some distant kinsman, no,
for my own sake I'll rid us of this corruption.
Whoever killed the king may decide to kill me too,
with the same violent hand—by avenging Laius
I defend myself. 160

(To the PRIESTS)

Quickly, my children.

Up from the steps, take up your branches now.

(To the GUARDS)

One of you summon the city here before us, tell them I'll do everything. God help us,
we will see our triumph—or our fall.

(OEDIPUS and CREON enter the palace, followed by the GUARDS.)

165 PRIEST: Rise, my sons. The kindness we came for Oedipus volunteers himself.
 Apollo has sent his word, his oracle—
 Come down, Apollo, save us, stop the plague.

(The PRIESTS rise, remove their branches and exit to the side. Enter a CHORUS, the citizens of Thebes, who have not heard the news that CREON brings. They march around the altar, chanting.)

CHORUS: Zeus!
 Great welcome voice of Zeus, what do you bring?
 170 What word from the gold vaults of Delphi Comes to brilliant Thebes? Racked with terror—Terror shakes my heart and I cry your wild cries, Apollo, Healer of Delos
 I worship you in dread... what now, what is your price?
 175 some new sacrifice? some ancient rite from the past come round again each spring?—
 what will you bring to birth?
 Tell me, child of golden Hope
 Warm voice that never dies!

180 You are the first I call, daughter of Zeus Deathless Athena—I call your sister Artemis, heart of the market place enthroned in glory,
 guardian of our earth—
 I call Apollo, Archer astride the thunderheads of heaven—185 O triple shield against death, shine before me now!
 If ever, once in the past, you stopped some ruin launched against our walls you hurled the flame of pain far, far from Thebes—you gods 190 come now, come down once more!
 No, no
 the miseries numberless, grief on grief, no end—too much to bear, we are all dying
 O my people...
 Thebes like a great army dying
 195 and there is no sword of thought to save us, no and the fruits of our famous earth, they will not ripen no and the women cannot scream their pangs to birth—screams for the Healer, children dead in the womb and life on life goes down 200 you can watch them go like seabirds winging west, outracing the day's fire down the horizon, irresistibly streaking on to the shores of Evening Death
 so many deaths, numberless deaths on deaths, no end—205 Thebes is dying, look, her children Stripped of pity... generations strewn on the ground
 unburied, unwept, the dead spreading death and the young wives and gray-haired mothers with them 210 cling to the altars, trailing in from all over the city—
 Thebes, city of death, one long cortege
 And the suffering rises Wails for mercy rise and the wild hymn for the Healer blazes out 215 clashing with our sobs our cries of mourning—
 O golden daughter of god, send rescue radiant as the kindness in your eyes!

Drive him back!—the fever, the god of death
 That raging god of war not armored in bronze, not shielded now, he burns me, 220 battle cried in the onslaught burning on—O rout him from our borders!
 Sail him, blast him out to the Sea-queen's chamber the black Atlantic gulfs or the northern harbor, death to all 225
 where the Thracian surf comes crashing.
 Now what the night spares he comes by day and kills—
 the god of death.
 O lord of the stormcloud,
 you who twirl the lightning, Zeus, Father, thunder death to nothing! 230
 Apollo, lord of the light, I beg you—Whip your longbow's golden cord showering arrows on our enemies—shafts of power champions strong before us rushing on!

Artemis, Huntress, 235 torches flaring over eastern ridges—ride death down in pain!

God of the headdress gleaming gold, I cry to you—your name and ours are one, Dionysus—come with your face aflame with wine 240 your raving women's cries your army on the march! Come with lightning come with torches blazing, eyes ablaze with glory!
 Burn that god of death that all gods hate!

(OEDIPUS enters from the palace to address the CHORUS, as if addressing the entire city of Thebes.)

OEDIPUS: You pray to the gods? Let me grant your prayers. 245 Come, listen to me—do what the plague demands:
 you'll find relief and lift your head from the depths.

I will speak out now as a stranger to the story,
 a stranger to the crime. If I'd been present then,
 there would have been no mystery, no long hunt 250 without a clue in hand. So now, counted a native Theban years after the murder,
 to all of Thebes I make this proclamation:
 if any one of you knows who murdered Laius,
 the son of Labdacus, I order him to reveal 255
 the whole truth to me. Nothing to fear, even if he must denounce himself,
 let him speak up
 and so escape the brunt of the charge—
 he will suffer no unbearable punishment 260 nothing worse than exile, totally unharmed.

(OEDIPUS pauses, waiting for a reply.)

Next,
 if anyone knows the murderer is a stranger,
 a man from alien soil, come, speak up.
 I will give him a handsome reward, and lay up gratitude in my heart for him besides. 265

(Silence again, no reply.)

But if you keep silent, if anyone panicking, trying to shield himself or friend or kin,
 rejects my offer, then hear what I will do.
 I order you, every citizen of the state 270 where I hold throne and power: banish this man—whoever he may be—never shelter him, never speak a word to him, never make him partner to your prayers, your victims burned to the gods.
 Never let the holy water touch his hands.
 275 Drive him out, each of you, from every home.
He is the plague, the heart of our corruption,
as Apollo's oracle has just revealed to me.
 So I honor my obligations:
 I fight for the god and for the murdered man.

280 Now my curse on the murderer. Whoever he is, a lone man unknown in his crime or one among many, let that man drag out his life in agony, step by painful step—
 I curse myself as well... if by any chance 285 he proves to be an intimate of our house, here at my hearth, with my full knowledge,
 may the curse I just called down on him strike me!

These are your orders: perform them to the last.
 I command you, for my sake, for Apollo's, for this country
 290 blasted root and branch by the angry heavens.
 Even if god had never urged you on to act,
 how could you leave the crime uncleansed so long?
 A man so noble—your king, brought down in blood—you should have searched. But I am the king now, 295 I hold the throne that he held then, possess his bed and a wife who shares our seed... why, our seed might be the same, children born of the same mother might have created blood-bonds between us
 if his hope of offspring had not met disaster—300 but fate swooped at his head and cut him short.
 So I will fight for him as if he were my father,
 stop at nothing, search the world to lay my hands on the man who shed his blood,
 the son of Labdacus descended of Polydorus, 305 Cadmus of old and Agenor, founder of the line:
 their power and mine are one.
 Oh dear gods,
 my curse on those who disobey these orders!
 Let no crops grow out of the earth for them—
 shrivel their women, kill their sons, 310 burn them to nothing in this plague that hits us now, or something even worse.
 But you, loyal men of Thebes who approve my actions, may our champion, Justice, may all the gods be with us, fight beside us to the end!

315 LEADER: In the grip of your curse, my king, I swear
 I'm not the murdered, I cannot point him out.
 As for the search, Apollo pressed it on us—
 he should name the killer.
 OEDIPUS: Quite right,
 But to force the gods to act against their will—320 no man has the power.
 LEADER: Then if I might mention
 the next best thing...

OEDIPUS: The third best too—
 don't hold back, say it.
 LEADER: I still believe...
 Lord Tiresias sees with the eyes of Lord Apollo.
 Anyone searching for the truth, my king, might learn it from the prophet, clear as day 325 OEDIPUS: I've not been slow with that. On Creon's cue
 I sent the escorts, twice, within the hour.
 I'm surprised he isn't here.
 LEADER: We need him—
 without him we have nothing but old, useless rumors.
 OEDIPUS: Which rumors? I'll search out every word. 330
 LEADER: Laius was killed, they say, by certain travelers.
 OEDIPUS: I know—but no one can find the murderer.
 LEADER: If the man has a trace of fear in him
 he won't stay silent long,
 not with your curse ringing in his ears. 335 OEDIPUS: He didn't flinch at murder, he'll never flinch at words.

(Enter TIRESIAS, the blind prophet, led by a boy with escorts in attendance. He remains at a distant.)

LEADER: Here is the one who will convict him, loo, they bring him on at least, the seer, the man of god.
 The truth lives inside him, him alone. 340
 OEDIPUS: O Tiresias,
 Master of all the mysteries of our life,
 all you teach and all you dare not tell,
 signs in the heavens, signs that walk the earth!
 Blind as you are, you can feel all the more what sickness haunts our city. You, my lord, are the one shield, the one savior we can find. 345

We asked Apollo—perhaps the messengers haven't told you—he sent his answer back:
 "Relief from the plague can only come one way.
 Uncover the murderers of Laius,
 350 put them to death or drive them into exile."
 So I beg you, grudge us nothing now, no voice, no message plucked from the birds, the embers or other mantic ways within your grasp.
 Rescue yourself, your city, rescue me-- 355
 We are in your hands. For a man to help others with all his gifts and native strength:
 that is the noblest work.

TIRESIAS: How terrible—to see the truth
 when the truth is only pain to him who sees! 360
 I knew it well, but I put it from my mind, else I never would have come.

OEDIPUS: What's this? Why so grim, so dire?
 TIRESIAS: Just send me home. You bear your burdens,
 I'll bear mine. It's better that way, 365
 Please believe me.

OEDIPUS: Strange response... unlawful, unfriendly too to the state that bred and reared you—
 you withhold the word of god.

TIRESIAS: I fail to see that your own words are so well-timed.
 I'd rather not have the same thing said of me... 370

OEDIPUS: For the love of God, don't turn away, not if you know something. We beg you,
all of us on our knees.

TIRESIAS: None of you knows—and I will never reveal my dreadful secrets, 375 not to say your own.

OEDIPUS: What? You know and you won't tell?
You're bent on betraying us, destroying Thebes?

TIRESIAS: I'd rather not cause pain for you or me.
So why this... useless interrogation?

380 You'll get nothing from me.

OEDIPUS: Nothing! You,
you scum of the earth, you'd enrage a heart of stone!
You won't talk? Nothing moves you?
Out with it, once and for all!

TIRESIAS: You criticize my temper... unaware 385 of the one you live with, you revile me.

OEDIPUS: Who could restrain his anger hearing you?
What outrage—you spurn the city!

TIRESIAS: What will come will come.
Even if I shroud it all in silence.

390 OEDIPUS: What will come? You're bound to tell me that.

TIRESIAS: I will say no more. Do as you like, build your anger to whatever pitch you please, rage your worst—

OEDIPUS: Oh I'll let loose, I have such fury in me—now I see it all. You helped hatch the plot, 395 you did the work, yes, short of killing him with your own hands—and given eyes I'd say you did the killing single-handed!

TIRESIAS: Is that so!
I charge you, then, submit to that decree
you just laid down: from this day onward 400 speak to no one, not these citizens, not myself.
You are the curse, the corruption of the land!

OEDIPUS: You, shameless—
Aren't you appalled to start up such a story?
You think you can get away with this?

TIRESIAS: I have already.

405 The truth with all its power lives inside me.

OEDIPUS: Who primed you for this? Not your prophet's trade.

TIRESIAS: You did, you forced me, twisted it out of me.

OEDIPUS: What? Say it again—I'll understand it better.

TIRESIAS: Didn't you understand, just now?

410 Or are you tempting me to talk?

OEDIPUS: No, I can't say I grasped your meaning.
Out with it again!

TIRESIAS: I saw you are the murderer you hunt.

OEDIPUS: That obscenity, twice—by god, you'll pay.

415 TIRESIAS: Shall I say more, so you can really rage?

OEDIPUS: Much as you want. Your words are nothing—futile.

TIRESIAS: You cannot imagine... I tell you,
You and your loved ones live together in infamy,
you cannot see how far you've gone in guilt.

420 OEDIPUS: You think you can keep this up and never suffer?

TIRESIAS: Indeed, if the truth has any power.

OEDIPUS: It does
but not for you, old man. You've lost your power, stone-blind, stone-deaf—senses, eyes blind as stone!

TIRESIAS: I pity you, flinging at me the very insults
425 each man here will fling at you so soon

OEDIPUS: Blind,
lost in the night, endless night that nursed you!
You can't hurt me or anyone else who sees the light—
you can never touch me.

TIRESIAS: True, it is not your fate to fall at my hands. Apollo is quite enough and he will take some pains to work this out. 430

OEDIPUS: Creon! Is this conspiracy his or yours?

TIRESIAS: Creon is not your downfall, no, you are your own.

OEDIPUS: O power—wealth and empire, skill outstripping skill in the heady rivalries of life, what envy lurks inside you! Just for this, 435
the crown the city gave me—I never sought it, they laid it in my hands—for this alone, Creon
the soul of trust, my loyal friend from the start steals against me... so hungry to overthrow me he sets this wizard on me, this scheming quack, 440 this fortune-teller peddling lies, eyes peeled for his own profit—seer blind in his craft!

Come here, you pious fraud. Tell me, when did you ever prove yourself a prophet?
When the Sphinx, that chanting Fury kept her deathwatch here, 445
why silent then, not a word to set our people free?
There was a riddle, not for some passer-by to solve—it cried out for a prophet. Where were you?
Did you rise to the crisis? Not a word,
you and your birds, your gods—nothing. 450
No, but I came by, Oedipus the ignorant,
I stopped the Sphinx! With no help from the birds,
the flight of my own intelligence hit the mark.

And this is the man you'd try to overthrow?
You think you'll stand by Creon when he's king? 455
You and the great mastermind—you'll pay in tears, I promise you, for this,
this witch-hunt. If you didn't look so senile
the lash would teach you what your scheming means!

LEADER: I would suggest his words were spoken in anger 460
Oedipus... yours too, and it isn't what we need.
The best solution to the oracle, the riddle posed by god—we should look for that.

TIRESIAS: You are the king no doubt, but in one respect, at least, I am your equal: the right to reply. 465
I claim that privilege too,
I am not your slave. I serve Apollo.
I don't need Creon to speak for me in public.

So,
you mock my blindness? Let me tell you this.
You with your precious eyes, 470
you're blind to the corruption of your life, to the house you live in, those you live with—who are your parents? Do you know? All unknowing you are the scourge of your own flesh and blood, the dead below the earth and the living here above 475 and the double lash of your mother and your father's curse
will whip you from this land one day, their footfall treading you down in terror, darkness shrouding your eyes that now can see the light!

Soon, soon
 480 you'll scream aloud—what haven won't reverberate?
 What rock of Cithaeron won't scream back in echo?
 That day you learn the truth about your marriage,
 the wedding-march that sang you into your halls,
 the lusty voyage home to the fatal harbor!
 485 And a crowd of other horrors you'd never dream will level you with yourself and all your children.

There. No smear us with insults—Creon, myself and every word I've said. No man will ever be rooted from the earth as brutally as you.

490 OEDIPUS: Enough! Such filth from him? Insufferable—
 What, still alive? Get out—faster, back where you came from—vanish!
 TIRESIAS: I would never have come if you hadn't called me here!
 OEDIPUS: If I thought you would blurt out such absurdities, 495 you'd have died waiting before I had you summoned TIRESIAS: Absurd, am I! To you, not to your parents:
 the ones who bore you found me sane enough!
 OEDIPUS: Parents—who? Wait... who is my father?
 TIRESIAS: This day will bring your birth and your destruction.
 500 OEDIPUS: Riddles—all you can say are riddles, murk and darkness.
 TIRESIAS: Ah, but aren't you the best man alive at solving riddles?
 OEDIPUS: Mock me for that, go on, and you'll reveal my greatness.
 TIRESIAS: Your great good fortune, true, it was your ruin.
 OEDIPUS: Not if I saved the city—what do I care?
 505 TIRESIAS: Well then, I'll be going.

(To his ATTENDANT)
 Take me home, boy.
 OEDIPUS: Yes, take him away. You're a nuisance here.
 Out of the way, the irritation's gone.

(Turning his back on TIRESIAS, moving toward the palace.)
 TIRESIAS: I will go,
 once I have said what I came here to say.
 I will never shrink from the anger in your eyes—510 you can't destroy me. Listen to me closely:
 the man you've sought so long, proclaiming, cursing up and down, the murderer of Laius—
 he is here. A stranger, you may think, who lives among you 515 he soon will be revealed a native Theban
 but he will take no joy in the revelation.
 Blind who now has eyes, beggar who now is rich,
 he will grope his way toward a foreign soil,
 a stick tapping before him step by step.

(OEDIPUS enters the palace.)
 520 Revealed at last, brother and father both to the children he embraces, to his mother son and husband both—he sowed the loins his father sowed, he spilled his father's blood!

Go in and reflect on that, solve that.
 525 And if you find I've lied from this day onward call the prophet blind.

CHORUS: Who—
 who is the man the voice of god denounces resounding out of the rocky gorge of Delphi?
 The horror too dark to tell,
 whose ruthless bloody hands have done the work? 530
 His time has come to fly to outrace the stallions of the storm his feet a streak of speed—lunges on him, lightning-bolts afire! 535
 And the grim unerring Furies
 Closing for the kill Look,
 the word of god has just come blazing flashing off Parnassus' snowy heights!
 That man who left no trace-- 540
 after him, hunt him down with all our strength!
 Now under bristling timber up through rocks and caves he stalks like the wild mountain bull—cut off from men, each step an agony, frenzied, racing blind 545
 but he cannot outrace the dread voices of Delphi ringing out of the heart of Earth,
 the dark wings beating around him shrieking doom
 the doom that never dies, the terror—
 The skilled prophet scans the birds and shatters me with 550 terror!
 I can't accept him, can't deny hkm, don't know what to say,
 I'm lost, and the wings of dark foreboding beating—
 I cannot see what's come, what's still to come...
 and what could breed a blood feud between Laius' house and the son of Polybus? 555
 I know of nothing, not in the past and not now, no charge to bring against our king, no cause to attack his fame that rings throughout Thebes—not without proof—not for the ghost of Laius, not to avenge a murder gone without a trace. 560

Zeus and Apollo know, they know, the great masters
 Of all the dark and depth of human life.
 But whether a mere man can know the truth, whether a seer can fathom more than I – there is no test, no certain proof 565 though matching skill for skill a man can outstrip a rival. No, not till I see these charges proved will I side with his accusers.
 We saw him then, when the she-hawk swept against him, saw with our own eyes his skill, his brilliant triumph-- 570
 there was the test—he was the joy of Thebes!
 Never will I convict my king, never in my heart.

(Enter CREON from the side.)
 CREON: My fellow-citizens, I hear King Oedipus levels terrible charges at me. I had to come.
 I resent it deeply. If, in the present crisis, 575
 he thinks he suffers any abuse from me, anything I've done or said that offers him
 the slightest injury, why, I've no desire to linger out this life, my reputation in ruins.

580 The damage I'd face from such an accusation is nothing simple. No, there's nothing worse:
branded a traitor in the city, a traitor
to all of you and my good friends.
LEADER: True,
but a slur might have been forced out of him, 585 by anger perhaps, not any firm conviction.
CREON: The charge was made in public, wasn't it?
/ put the prophet up to spreading lies?
LEADER: Such things were said...
I don't know with what intent, if any.
590 CREON: Was his glance steady, his mind right
when the charge was brought against me?
LEADER: I really couldn't say, I never look to judge the ones in power.

(The doors open. OEDIPUS enters.)

Wait,
here's Oedipus now.
OEDIPUS: You—here? You have the gall 595 to show your face before the palace gates?
You, plotting to kill me, kill the king—
I see it all, the marauding thief himself
Scheming to steal my crown and power!
Tell me,
in god's name, what did you take me for,
600 coward or fool, when you spun out your plot?
Your treachery—you think I'd never detect it creeping against me in the dark? Or sensing it, not defend myself? Aren't you the fool,
you and your high adventure. Lacking numbers, 605 powerful friends, out for the big game of empire—
you need riches, armies to bring that quarry down!
CREON: Are you quite finished? It's your turn to listen for just as long as you've... instructed me.
Hear me out, then judge me on the facts.
610 OEDIPUS: You've a wicked way with words, Creon,
But I'll be slow to learn—from you.
I find you a menace, a great burden to me.
CREON: Just one thing, hear me out in this.
OEDIPUS: Just one thing,
Don't tell me you're not the enemy, the traitor.
615 CREON: Look, if you think crude, mindless stubbornness such a gift, you've lost your sense of balance.
OEDIPUS: If you think you can abuse a kinsman,
then escape the penalty, you're insane.
CREON: Fair enough, I grant you. But this injury 620 you say I've done you, what is it?
OEDIPUS: Did you induce me, yes or no,
to send for that sanctimonious prophet?
CREON: I did. And I'd do the same again.
OEDIPUS: All right, then, tell me, how long is it now 625 since Laius...
CREON: Laius—what did he do?
OEDIPUS: Vanished,
swept from sight, murdered in his own tracks.
CREON: The count of the years would run you far back...
OEDIPUS: And that far back, was the prophet at his trade?
CREON: Skilled as he is today, and just as honored.

OEDIPUS: Did he ever refer to me then, at that time? 630
CREON: No:
Never, at least, when I was in his presence.
OEDIPUS: But you did investigate the murder, didn't you?
CREON: We did our best, of course, discovered nothing.
OEDIPUS: But the great seer never accused me then—why not?
CREON: I don't know. And when I don't, I keep quiet. 635
OEDIPUS: You do know this, you'd tell it too—
if you had a shred of decency.
CREON: What?
If I know, I won't hold back.
OEDIPUS: Simply this:
if the two of you had never put heads together,
we would never have heard about my killing Laius. 640
CREON: If that's what he says... well, you know best.
But now I have a right to learn from you
As you just learned from me.
OEDIPUS: Learn your fill,
You never will convict me of the murder.
CREON: Tell me, you're married to my sister, aren't you? 645 OEDIPUS: A genuine discovery—there's no denying that.
CREON: And you rule the land with her, with equal power?
OEDIPUS: She receives from me whatever she desires.
CREON: And I am the third, all of us are equals?
OEDIPUS: Yes, and it's there you show your stripes-- 650
you betray a kinsman.
CREON: Not at all.
Not if you see things calmly, rationally,
as I do. Look at it this way first:
who in his right mind would rather rule and live in anxiety than sleep in peace? 655 Particularly if he enjoys the same authority.
Not I, I'm not the man to year for kingship, not with a king's power in my hands. Who would?
No one with any sense of self-control.
Now, as it is, you offer me all I need 660 not a fear in the world. But if I wore the crown... there'd be many painful duties to perform, hardly to my taste.
How could kingship
please me more than influence, power without a qualm? I'm not that deluded yet, 665 to reach for anything but privilege outright, profit free and clear.
Now all men sing my praises, all salute me,
now all who request your favors curry mine.
I am their best hope: success rests in me. 670
Why give up that, I ask you, and borrow trouble?
A man of sense, someone who sees things clearly would never resort to treason.
No, I have no lust for conspiracy in me,
nor could I ever suffer one who does. 675

Do you want proof? Go to Delphi yourself, Examine the oracle and see if I've reported the message word-for-word. This too:
if you detect that I and the clairvoyant have plotted anything in common, arrest me, 680 execute me. Not on the strength of one vote, two in this case, mine as well as yours.

But don't convict me on sheer unverified surmise.
 How wrong is it to take the good for bad, 685 purely at random, or take the bad for good.
 But reject a friend, a kinsman? I would as soon tear out the life within us, priceless life itself.
 You'll learn this well, without fail, in time.
 Time alone can bring the just man to light—690 the criminal you can spot in one short day.
 LEADER: Good advice,
 my lord, for anyone who wants to avoid disaster.
 Those who jump to conclusions may go wrong.
 OEDIPUS: When my enemy moves against me quickly, Plots in secret, I move quickly too, I must, 695 I plot and pay him back. Relax my guard a moment, waiting his next move—he wins his objective,
 I lose mine.
 CREON: What do you want?
 You want me banished?
 OEDIPUS: No, I want you dead.
 CREON: Just to show how ugly a grudge can...
 OEDIPUS: So,
 700 still stubborn? you don't think I'm serious?
 CREON: I think you're insane.
 OEDIPUS: Quite sane—in my behalf.
 CREON: Not just as much in mine?
 OEDIPUS: You—my mortal enemy?
 CREON: What if you're wholly wrong?
 OEDIPUS: No matter-- I must rule.
 CREON: Not if you rule unjustly.
 OEDIPUS: Here him, Thebes, my city!
 705 CREON: My city too, not yours alone!
 LEADER: Please, my lords.

(Enter JOCASTA from the palace.)

Look, Jocasta's coming, and just in time too. With her help you must put this fighting of yours to rest.
 JOCASTA: Have you no sense? Poor misguided men, 710 such shouting—why this public outburst?
 Aren't you ashamed, with the land so sick,
 To stir up private quarrels?

(To OEDIPUS)

Into the palace now. And Creon, you go home.
 Why make such a furor over nothing?
 715 CREON: My sister, it's dreadful... Oedipus, your husband, he's bent on a choice of punishments for me,
 banishment from the fatherland or death.
 OEDIPUS: Precisely. I caught him in the act, Jocasta, plotting, about to stab me in the back.
 720 CREON: Never—curse me, let me die and be damned
 if I've done you any wrong you charge me with.
 JOCASTA: Oh god, believe it, Oedipus, Honor the solemn oath he swears to heaven.
 Do it for me, for the sake of all your people.

(The CHORUS begins to chant.)

725 CHORUS: Believe it, be sensible give way, my kind, I beg you!

OEDIPUS: What do you want from me, concessions?
 CHORUS: Respect him—he's been no fool in the past and now he's strong with the oath he swears to god.
 OEDIPUS: You know what you're asking? 730
 CHORUS: I do.
 OEDIPUS: Then out with it!
 CHORUS: The man's your friend, your kin, he's under oath—
 don't cast him out, disgraced branded with guilt on the strength of hearsay only.
 OEDIPUS: Know full well, if that is what you want you want me dead or banished from the land. 735 CHORUS: Never—
 no, by the blazing Sun, first god of the heavens!
 Stripped of the gods, stripped of loved ones,
 let me die by inches if that ever crossed my mind.
 But the heart inside me sickens, dies as the land dies and now on top of the old griefs you pile this, 740 your fury—both of you!
 OEDIPUS: Then let him go,
 even if it does lead to my ruin, my death or my disgrace, driven from Thebes for life.
 It's you, not him I pity—your words move me.
 He, wherever he goes, my hate goes with him 745 CREON: Look at you, sullen in yielding, brutal in your rage—you will go too far. It's perfect justice:
 natures like yours are hardest on themselves.
 OEDIPUS: Then leave me alone—get out!
 CREON: I'm going,
 You're wrong, so wrong. These men know I'm right. 750

(Exit to the side. The CHORUS turns to JOCASTA.)

CHORUS: Why do you hesitate, my lady
 Why not help him in?
 JOCASTA: Tell me what's happened first.
 CHORUS: Loose, ignorant talk started dark suspicions and a sense of injustice cut deeply too. 755 JOCASTA: On both sides?
 CHORUS: Oh yes.
 JOCASTA: What did they say?
 CHORUS: Enough, please, enough! The land's so racked already or so it seems to me...
 End the trouble here, just where they left it.
 OEDIPUS: You see what comes of your good intentions now? 760
 And all because you tried to blunt my anger.
 CHORUS: My king,
 I've said it once, I'll say it time and again—
 I'd be insane, you know it, senseless, ever to turn my back on you.
 You who set our beloved land—storm-tossed, shattered-- 765 straight on course. Now again, good helmsman, steer us through the storm!

(The CHORUS draws away, leaving OEDIPUS and JOCASTA side by side.)

JOCASTA: For the love of god,
 Oedipus, tell me too, what is it?
 Why this rage? You're so unbending.
 OEDIPUS: I will tell you. I respect you, Jocasta, 770 much more than these men here...

(Glancing at the CHORUS)

Creon's to blame, Creon schemes against me.
JOCASTA: Tell me clearly, how did the quarrel start?
OEDIPUS: He says I murdered Laius—I am guilty.
775 JOCASTA: How does he know? Some secret knowledge or simple hearsay?
OEDIPUS: Oh, he sent his prophet in to do his dirty work. You know Creon, Creon keeps his own lips clean.
JOCASTA: A prophet?
Well then, free yourself of every charge!
780 Listen to me and learn some peace of mind:
no skill in the world
nothing human can penetrate the future.
Here is proof, quick and to the point.

An oracle came to Laius one fine day 785 (I won't say from Apollo himself but his underlings, his priests) and it declared that doom would strike him down at the hands of a son, our son, to be born of our own flesh and blood. But Laius, so the report goes at least, was killed by strangers, 790 thieves, at a place where three roads meet... my son—
he wasn't three days old and the boy's father fastened his ankles, had a henchman fling him away on a barren, trackless mountain.
There, you see?
Apollo brought neither thing to pass. My baby 795 no more murdered his father than Laius suffered—his wildest fear—death at his own son's hands.
That's how the seers and all their revelations mapped out the future. Brush them from your mind.
Whatever the god needs and seeks 800 he'll bring to light himself, with ease.
OEDIPUS: Strange,
Hearing you just now... my mind wandered,
my thoughts racing back and forth.
JOCASTA: What do you mean? Why so anxious, startled?
OEDIPUS: I thought I heard you say that Laius 805 was cut down at a place where three roads meet.
JOCASTA: That was the story. It hasn't died out yet.
OEDIPUS: Where did this thing happen? Be precise.
JOCASTA: A place called Phocis, where two branching roads,
one from Daulia, one from Delphi, 810 come together—a crossroads.
OEDIPUS: When? How long ago?
JOCASTA: The heralds no sooner reported Laius dead than you appeared and they hailed you king of Thebes.
OEDIPUS: My god, my god- what have you planned to do to me?
815 JOCASTA: What, Oedipus? What haunts you so?
OEDIPUS: Not yet.
Laius—how did he look? Describe him.
Had he reached his prime?
JOCASTA: He was swarthy,
And the gray had just begun to streak his temples,
and his build... wasn't far from yours.
OEDIPUS: Oh no no,
820 I think I've just called down a dreadful curse upon myself—I simply didn't know!

JOCASTA: What are you saying? I shudder to look at you.
OEDIPUS: I have a terrible fear the blind seer can see.
I'll know in a moment. One thing more—JOCASTA: Anything,
825 Afraid as I am—ask, I'll answer, all I can.
OEDIPUS: Did he go with a light or heavy escort, several men-at-arms, like a lord, a king?
JOCASTA: There were five in the party, a herald among them,
and a single wagon carrying Laius.
OEDIPUS: Ai--
830 now I can see it all, clear as day.
Who told you all this at the time, Jocasta?
JOCASTA: A servant who reached home, the lone survivor.
OEDIPUS: So, could he still be in the palace—even now?
JOCASTA: No indeed. Soon as he returned from the scene 835 and saw you on the throne with Laius dead and gone, he knelt and clutched my hand, pleading with me
to send him into the hinterlands, to pasture, far as possible, out of sight of Thebes.
I sent him away. Slave, though he was,
he'd earned that favor—and much more. 840
OEDIPUS: Can we bring him back, quickly?
JOCASTA: Easily. Why do you want him so?
OEDIPUS: I am afraid,
Jocasta, that I have said too much already.
That man—I've got to see him.
JOCASTA: Then he'll come.
845 But even I have a right, I'd like to think,
to know what's torturing you, my lord.
OEDIPUS: And so you shall—I can hold nothing back from you, now I've reached this pitch of dark foreboding.
Who means more to me than you? Tell me, 850 whom would I turn toward but you as I go through all this?

My father was Polybus, king of Corinth.
My mother, a Dorian, Merope. And I was held the prince of the realm among the people there, till something struck me out of nowhere, 855 something strange... worth remarking perhaps, hardly worth the anxiety I gave it.
Some man at a banquet who had drunk too much shouted out—he was far gone, mind you—that I am not my father's son. Fighting words! 860
I barely restrained myself that day
but early the next I went to mother and father, questioned them closely, and they were enraged
at the accusation and the fool who let it fly.
So as for my parents I was satisfied, 865
but still this thing kept gnawing at me,
the slander spread—I had to make my move.
And so,
unknown to mother and father I set out for Delphi,
and the god Apollo spurned me, sent me away denied the facts I came for, 870
but first he flashed before my eyes a future great with pain, terror, disaster—I can hear him cry,
"You are fated to couple with your mother, you will bring a breed of children into the light no man can bear to see—you will kill your father, the one who gave you life! 875

I heard all that and ran. I abandoned Corinth, from that day on I gauged its landfall only by the stars, running, always running toward some place where I would never see 880 the shame of all those oracles come true.
 And as I fled I reached that very spot where the great king, you say, met his death.

Now, Jocasta, I will tell you all.
 Making my way toward this triple crossroad 885 I began to see a herald, then a brace of colts drawing a wagon, and mounted on the bench... a man,
 just as you've described him, coming face-to-face,
 and the one in the lead and the old man himself were about to thrust me off the road—brute force—890 and the one shouldering me aside, the driver,
 I strike him in anger! — and the old man, watching me his prod, two prongs straight at my head!
 I paid him back with interest!
 895 Short work, by god—with one blow of the staff in this right hand I knock him out of his high seat, roll him out of the wagon, sprawling headlong—
 I killed them all—every mother's son!

Oh, but if there is any blood-tie 900 between Laius and this stranger... what man alive more miserable than I?
 More hated by the gods? I am the man
 no alien, no citizen welcomes to his house, law forbids it—not a word to me in public, 905 driven out of every hearth and home.
 And all these curses I—no one but I brought down these piling curses on myself!
 And you, his wife, I've touched your body with these,
 the hands that killed your husband cover you with blood.

910 Wasn't I born for torment? Look me in the eyes!
 I am abomination—heart and soul!
 I must be exiled, and even in exile never see my parents, never set foot on native ground again. Else I am doomed 915 to couple with my mother and cut my father down...
 Polybus who reared me, gave me life.
 But why, why?
 Wouldn't a man of judgment say—and wouldn't he be right—
 some savage power has brought this down upon my head?

Oh no, not that, you pure and awesome gods, 920 never let me see that day! Let me slip from the world of men, vanish without a trace before I see myself stained with such corruption, stained to the heart.

LEADER: My lord, you fill our hearts with fear.
 925 But at least until you question the witness,
 do take hope.

OEDIPUS: Exactly. He is my last hope—
 I am waiting for the shepherd. He is crucial.

JOCASTA: And once he appears, what then? Why so urgent?

OEDIPUS: I will tell you. If it turns out that his story 930 matches yours, I've escaped the worst.

JOCASTA: What did I say? What struck you so?
 OEDIPUS: You said
thieves—
 he told you a whole band of them murdered Laius.
 So, if he still holds to the same number,
 I cannot be the killer. One can't equal many.
 But if he refers to one man, one alone
 935 clearly the scales come down on me:
 I am guilty.

JOCASTA: Impossible. Trust me,
 I told you precisely what he said,
 and he can't retract it now;
 the whole city heard it, not just I.
 940 And even if he should vary his first report
 by one man more or less, still, my lord, he could never make the murder of Laius truly fit the prophecy. Apollo was explicit;
 my son was doomed to kill my husband... my son, 945 poor defenseless thing, he never had a chance to kill his father. They destroyed him first.

So much for prophecy. It's neither here nor there.
 From this day on. I wouldn't look right or left.

OEDIPUS: True, true. Still, that shepherd, 950 someone fetch him—now!

JOCASTA: I'll send at once. But do let's go inside.
 I'd never displease you, lease of all in this.

(OEDIPUS and JOCASTA enter the palace.)

CHORUS: Destiny guide me always Destiny find me filled with reverence 955 pure in word and deed.
 Great laws tower above us, reared on high born for the brilliant vault of heaven—
 Olympian Sky their only father, 960 nothing mortal, no man gave them birth,
 their memory deathless, never lost in sleep;
 within them lives a might god, the god does not grow old.

Pride breeds the tyrant violent pride, gorging, crammed to bursting with all that is overripe and rich with ruin-- 965 clawing up to the heights, headlong pride crashes down the abyss—sheer doom!
 No footing helps, all foothold lost and gone.
 But the healthy strife that makes the city strong—
 I pray that god will never end that wrestling;
 970 god, my champion, I will never let you go.

But if any man comes striding, high and mighty in all he says and does,
 no fear of justice, no reverence for the temples of the gods-- 975 let a rough doom tear him down, repay his pride, breakneck, ruinous pride!
 If he cannot reap his profits fairly cannot restrain himself from outrage—980 mad, laying hands on the holy things untouchable!
 Can such a man, so desperate, still boast
 he can save his life from the flashing bolts of god?

If all such violence goes with honor now
 why join the sacred dance?
 985 Never again will I go reverent to Delphi, the inviolate heart of Earth or Apollo's ancient oracle at Abae or Olympia of the fires—
 unless these prophecies all come true 990 for all mankind to point toward in wonder.
 King of kings, if you deserve your titles
 Zeus, remember, never forget!
 You and your deathless, everlasting reign.

They are dying, the old oracles sent to Laius, 995 now our masters strike them off the rolls.
 Nowhere Apollo's golden glory now—
 the gods, the gods go down.

(Enter JOCASTA from the palace, carrying a suppliant's branch wound in wool.)

JOCASTA: Lords of the realm, it occurred to me, just now, to visit the temples of the gods, 1000 so I have my branch in hand and incense too.

Oedipus is beside himself. Racked with anguish, no longer a man of sense, he won't admit the latest prophecies are hollow as the old—he's at the mercy of every passing voice 1005 if the voice tells of terror.
 I urge him gently, nothing seems to help,
 so I turn to you, Apollo, you are nearest.

(Placing her branch on the altar, while an old herdsman enters from the side, not the one just summoned by the King but an unexpected MESSENGER from Corinth.)

I come with prayers and offerings... I beg you, cleanse us, set us free of defilement!
 1010 Look at us, passengers in the grip of fear, watching the pilot of the vessel go to pieces.

MESSENGER: (Approaching JOCASTA and the CHORUS.) Strangers, please, I wonder if you could lead us to the palace of the king... I think it's Oedipus.
 Better, the man himself—you now where he is?

1015 LEADER: This is his palace, stranger. He's inside.
 But here is his queen, his wife and mother of his children.

MESSENGER: Blessings on you, noble queen, queen of Oedipus crowned with all your family—blessings on you always!

1020 JOCASTA: And the same to you, stranger, you deserve it... such a greeting. But what have you come for?
 Have you brought us news?

MESSENGER: Wonderful news—for the house, my lady, for your husband too.

JOCASTA: Really, what? Who sent you?

MESSENGER: Corinth.

1025 I'll give you the message in a moment.
 You'll be glad of it—how could you help it?—
 though it costs a little sorrow in the bargain.

JOCASTA: What can it be, with such a double edge?

MESSENGER: The people there, they want to make your Oedipus king of Corinth, so they're saying now. 1030

JOCASTA: Why? Isn't old Polybus still in power?

MESSENGER: No more. Death has got him in the tomb.

JOCASTA: What are you saying? Polybus, dead?—dead?

MESSENGER: If not,
 if I'm not telling the truth, strike me dead too. 1035

JOCASTA: (To a SERVANT.) Quickly, go to your master, tell him
 This!

You prophecies of the gods, where are you now?
 This is the man that Oedipus feared for years,
 he fled him, not to kill him—and now he's dead,
 quite by chance, a normal, natural death,
 not murdered by his son. 1040

OEDIPUS: (Emerging from the palace.)

Dearest,
 what now? Why call me from the palace?

JOCASTA: (Bringing the MESSENGER closer.) Listen to him, see for yourself what all those awful prophecies of god have come to.

OEDIPUS: And who is he? What can he have for me?
 JOCASTA: He's from Corinth, he's come to tell you 1045
 your father is no more—Polybus—he's dead!

OEDIPUS: (Wheeling on the MESSENGER.) What? Let me have it from your lips.

MESSENGER: Well,
 if that's what you want first, then here it is:
 make no mistake, Polybus is dead and gone.

OEDIPUS: How? murder?—Sickness? What killed him? 1050

MESSENGER: A light tip of the scales can put old bones to rest.

OEDIPUS: Sickness then—poor man, it wore him down.

MESSENGER: That,
 and the long count of years he'd measured out.

OEDIPUS: So!
 Jocasta, why, why look to the Prophet's hearth,
 the fires of the future? Why scan the birds 1055 that scream above our heads? They winged me on to the murder of my father, did they? That was my doom?

Well look, he's dead and buried, hidden under the earth, and here I am in Thebes, I never put hand to sword—unless some longing for me wasted him away, 1060
 then in a sense you'd say I caused his death.

But now, all those prophecies I feared—Polybus packs them off to sleep with him in hell!
 They're nothing, worthless.

JOCASTA: There.
 Didn't I tell you from the start? 1065

OEDIPUS: So you did. I was lost in fear.

JOCASTA: No more, sweep it from your mind forever.

OEDIPUS: But my mother's bed, surely I must fear—

JOCASTA: Fear?
 What should a man fear? It's all chance, chance rules our lives. Not a man on earth 1070 can see a day ahead, groping through the dark.
 Better to live at random, best we can.

And as for this marriage with your mother—have no fear. Many a man before you, in his dreams, has shared his mother's bed. 1075 Take such things for shadows, nothing at all-

Live, Oedipus,
as if there's no tomorrow!

OEDIPUS: Brave words,
and you'd persuade me if mother weren't alive.

1080 But mother lives, so for all your reassurances
I live in fear, I must.

JOCASTA: But your father's death, that, at least, is a great blessing, joy to the eyes!

OEDIPUS: Great, I know... but I fear her—she's still alive.

MESSENGER: Wait, who is this woman, makes you so afraid?

1085 OEDIPUS: Merope, old man. The wife of Polybus.

MESSENGER: The queen? What's there to fear in her?

OEDIPUS: A dreadful prophecy, stranger, sent by the gods.

MESSENGER: Tell me, could you? Unless it's forbidden other ears to hear.

OEDIPUS: Not at all.

1090 Apollo told me once—it is my fate—
I must make love with my own mother, shed my father's blood with my own hands.
So for years I've given Corinth a wide berth, and it's been my good fortune too. But still,

1095 to see one's parents and look into their eyes is the greatest joy I know.

MESSENGER: You're afraid of that?
That kept you out of Corinth?

OEDIPUS: My father, old man—
so I wouldn't kill my father.

MESSENGER: So that's it.
Well then, seeing I came with such good will, my king, 1100 why don't I rid you of that old worry now?

OEDIPUS: What a rich reward you'd have for that!

MESSENGER: What do you think I came for, majesty?
So you'd come home and I'd be better off.

OEDIPUS: Never, I will never go near my parents.

1105 MESSENGER: My boy, it's clear, you don't know what you're doing.

OEDIPUS: What do you mean, old man? For god's sake, explain.

MESSENGER: If you ran from them, always dodging home...

OEDIPUS: Always, terrified Apollo's oracle might come true—

MESSENGER: And you'd be covered with guilt, from both your Parents.

1110 OEDIPUS: That's right, old man, that fear is always with me.

MESSENGER: But don't you know? You've really nothing to fear.

OEDIPUS: But why? If I'm their son—Merope? Polybus?

MESSENGER: Polybus was nothing to you, that's why, not in blood.

OEDIPUS: What are you saying—Polybus was not my father?

1115 MESSENGER: No more than I am. He and I are equals.

OEDIPUS: My father—
how can my father equal nothing? You're nothing to me!

MESSENGER: Neither was he, no more your father than I am.

OEDIPUS: Then why did he call me his son?

MESSENGER: You were a gift,
years ago—know for a fact he took you 1120 from my hands.

OEDIPUS: No, from another's hands?
Then how could he love me so? He loved me, deeply...

MESSENGER: True, and his early years without a child made him love you all the more.

OEDIPUS: And you, did you... buy me? find me by accident?

MESSENGER: I stumbled on your,
down the woody flanks of Mount Cithaeron. 1125

OEDIPUS: So close,
what were you doing here, just passing through?

MESSENGER: Watching over my flocks, grazing them on the slopes.

OEDIPUS: A herdsman, were you? A vagabond, scraping for wages?

MESSENGER: Your savior too, my son, in your worst hour.

OEDIPUS: Oh—
when you picked me up, was I in pain? What exactly? 1130

MESSENGER: Your ankles... they tell the story. Look at them.

OEDIPUS: Why remind me of that, that old affliction?

MESSENGER: Your ankles were pinned together. I set you free.

OEDIPUS: That dreadful mark—I've had it from the cradle.

MESSENGER: And you got your name from that misfortune 1135 too,
the name's still with you.

OEDIPUS: Dear god, who did it?—
mother? father? Tell me.

MESSENGER: I don't know.
The one who gave you to me, he'd know more.

OEDIPUS: What? You took me from someone else?
You didn't find me yourself? 1140

MESSENGER: No sir,
another shepherd passed you on to me.

OEDIPUS: Who? Do you know? Describe him.

MESSENGER: He called himself a servant of...
if I remember rightly—Laius.

(JOCASTA turns sharply.)

OEDIPUS: The king of the land who ruled here long ago? 1145

MESSENGER: That's the one. That herdsman was his man.

OEDIPUS: Is he still alive? Can I see him?

MESSENGER: They'd know best, the people of these parts.

(OEDIPUS and the MESSENGER turn to the CHORUS.)

OEDIPUS: Does anyone know that herdsman, the one he mentioned? Anyone seen him 1150 in the fields, here in the city? Out with it!
The time has come to reveal this once for all.

LEADER: I think he's the very shepherd you wanted to see, a moment ago. But the queen, Jocasta, she's the one to say. 1151

OEDIPUS: Jocasta,
you remember the man we just sent for?
Is that the one he means?

JOCASTA: That man...
why ask? Old shepherd, talk, empty nonsense, don't give it another thought, don't even think—

OEDIPUS: What—give up now, with a clue like this? 1160
Fail to solve the mystery of my birth?
Not for all the world!

JOCASTA: Stop—in the name of god,
if you love your own life, call off this search!
My suffering is enough.

OEDIPUS: Courage!
 1165 Even if my mother turns out to be a slave,
 And I a slave, three generations back,
 you would not seem common.
 JOCASTA: Oh no,
 listen to me, I beg you, don't do this.
 OEDIPUS: Listen to you? No more. I must know it all, 1170 must see the truth at last.
 JOCASTA: No, please—
 For your sake—I want the best for you!
 OEDIPUS: Your best is more than I can bear.
 JOCASTA: You're doomed—may you never fathom who you are!
 OEDIPUS: (To a servant) Hurry, fetch me the herdsman, now!
 1175 Leave her to glory in her royal birth.
 JOCASTA: Aieeeeeee—Man of agony—
 that is the only name I have for you,
 that, no other—ever, ever, ever!

(Flinging through the palace doors. A long, tense silence follows.)

LEADER: Where's she gone, Oedipus?
 1180 Rushing off, such wild grief...
 I'm afraid that from this silence something monstrous may come bursting forth.
 OEDIPUS: Let it burst! Whatever will, whatever must!
 I must know my birth, no matter how common 1185 it may be—I must see my origins face-to-face.
 She perhaps, she with her woman's pride
 may well be mortified by my birth, but I, I count myself the son of Chance,
 the great goddess, giver of all good things—1190 I'll never see myself disgraced. She is my mother!
 And the moons have marked me out, my blood-brothers,
 One moon on the wane, the next moon great with power.
 That is my blood, my nature—I will never betray it,
 Never fail to search and learn my birth!
 1195 CHORUS: Yes—if I am a true prophet
 If I can grasp the truth,
 by the boundless skies of Olympus,
 at the full moon of tomorrow, Mount Cithaeron
 you will know how Oedipus glories in you—1200 you, his birthplace, nurse, his mountain-mother!
 And we will sing you, dancing out your praise—
 you life our monarch's heart!
 Apollo, Apollo, god of the wild cry
 may our dancing please you!
 Oedipus—
 1205 son, dear child, who bore you?
 Who of the nymphs who seem to live forever
 mated with Pan, the mountain-striding Father?
 Who was your mother? who, some bride of Apollo
 the god who loves the pastures spreading toward the sun?
 1210 Or was it Hermes, king of the lightning ridges?
 Or Dionysus, lord of frenzy, lord of the barren peaks—did he seize you in his hands, dearest of all his lucky finds?—
 found by the nymphs, their warm eyes dancing, gift to the lord who loves them dancing out his joy!

(OEDIPUS strains to see a figure coming from the distance. Attended by palace GUARDS, an old SHEPHERD enters slowly, reluctant to approach the king.)

OEDIPUS: I never met the man, my friends... still 1215
 if I had to guess, I'd say that's the shepherd,
 the very one we've looked for all along.
 Brothers in old age, two of a kind,
 he and our guest here. At any rate the ones who bring him in are my own men, 1220
 I recognize them.

(Turning to the LEADER.)

But you know more than I,
 You should, you've seen the man before.
 LEADER: I know him, definitely. One of Laius' men, a trusty shepherd, if there ever was one.
 OEDIPUS: You, I ask you first, stranger 1225
 you from Corinth—is this the one you mean?
 MESSENGER: You're looking at him. He's your man.
 OEDIPUS: (To the SHEPHERD) You, old man, come over here—look at me. Answer all my questions.
 Did you every serve King Laius? 1230 SHEPHERD: So I did...
 a slave, not bought on the block though,
 born and reared in the palace.
 OEDIPUS: Your duties, your kind of work?
 SHEPHERD: Herding the flocks, the better part of my life.
 OEDIPUS: Where, mostly? Where did you do your grazing? 1235
 SHEPHERD: Well,
 Cithaeron sometimes, or the foothills round about.
 OEDIPUS: This man—you know him? ever see him there?
 SHEPHERD: (Confused, glancing from the MESSENGER to the king.)
 Doing what?—what man do you mean?
 OEDIPUS: (Pointing to the MESSENGER.) This one here—ever
 Have dealings with him?
 SHEPHERD: Not so I could say, but give me a chance, 1240
 my memory's bad...
 MESSENGER: No wonder he doesn't know me, master.
 But let me refresh his memory for him.
 I'm sure he recalls old times we had on the slopes of Mount Cithaeron; 1245
 he and I, grazing our flocks, he with two and I with one—we both struck up together, three whole seasons, six months at a stretch from spring to the rising of Arcturus in the fall, then with winter coming on I'd drive my herds 1250 to my own pens, and back he'd go with his to Laius' folds.

(To the SHEPHERD.)

Now that's how it was,
 wasn't it—yes or no?
 SHEPHERD: Yes, I suppose...
 It's all so long ago.
 MESSENGER: Come, tell me,
 you gave me a child back then, a boy, remember 1255
 A little fellow to rear, my very own.
 SHEPHERD: What? Why rake that up again?

MESENTER: Look, here he is, my fine old friend—
the same man who was just a baby then.
1260 SHEPHERD: Damn you, shut your mouth—quiet!
OEDIPUS: Don't lash out at him, old man—
you need lashing more than he does.
SHEPHERD: Why,
master, majesty—what have I done wrong?
OEDIPUS: You won't answer his question about the boy.
1265 SHEPHERD: He's talking nonsense, wasting his breath.
OEDIPUS: So, you won't talk willingly—
Then you'll talk with pain.

(The GUARDS seize the SHEPHERD.)

SHEPHERD: No, dear god, don't torture an old man!
OEDIPUS: Twist his arms back, quickly!
SHEPHERD: God help us, why?
1270 what more do you need to know?
OEDIPUS: Did you give him that child? He's asking.
SHEPHERD: I did... I wish to god I'd died that day.
OEDIPUS: You've got your wish if you don't tell the truth.
SHEPHERD: The more I tell, the worse the death I'll die.
1275 OEDIPUS: Our friend here wants to stretch things out, does he?

(Motioning to his men for torture.)

SHEPHERD: No, no, I gave it to him—I just said so.
OEDIPUS: Where did you get it? Your house? Someone else's?
SHEPHERD: It wasn't mind, no, I got it from... someone.
OEDIPUS: Which one of them?

(Looking at the citizens.)

Whose house?
SHEPHERD: No—
1280 god's sake, master, no more questions!
OEDIPUS: You're dead man if I have to ask again.
SHEPHERD: Then—the child came from the house—of Laius.
OEDIPUS: A slave? or born of his own blood?
SHEPHERD: On no.
1285 I'm right at the edge, the horrible truth—I've got to say it!
OEDIPUS: And I'm at the edge of hearing horrors, yes, but I must hear!
SHEPHERD: All right! His son, they said it was—his son!
But the one inside, your wife,
she'd tell it best.
OEDIPUS: My wife—
1290 she gave it to you?
SHEPHERD: Yes, yes, my king.
OEDIPUS: Why, what for?
SHEPHERD: To kill it.
OEDIPUS: Her own child, 1295 how could she?
SHEPHERD: She was afraid—frightening prophecies.
OEDIPUS: What?
SHEPHERD: They said—
he'd kill his parents.
1300 OEDIPUS: But you gave him to this old man—why?

SHEPHERD: I pitied the little baby, master, hoped he'd take him off to his own country,
far away, but he saved him for this, this fate.
If you are the man he says you are, believe me,
you were born for pain. 1305 OEDIPUS: O god—
all come true, all burst to light!
O light—now let me look my last on you!
I stand revealed at last—cursed in my birth, cursed in marriage, cursed in the lives I cut down with these hands! 1310

(Rushing through the doors with a great cry. The Corinthian MESSENGER, the SHEPHERD, and ATTENDANTS exit slowly to the side.)

CHORUS: O the generations of men
the dying generations—adding the total of all your lives I find they come to nothing... does there exist, is there a man on earth who seizes more joy than just a dream, a vision? 1315
And the vision no sooner dawns than dies blazing into oblivion.
You are my great example, you, your life
your destiny, Oedipus, man of misery—
I count no man blest. 1320

You outranged all men!
Bending your bow to the breaking-point
you captured priceless glory, O dear god, and the Sphinx came crashing down,
the virgin, claws hooked 1325
like a bird of omen singing, shrieking death—like a fortress reared in the face of death
you rose and saved our land.

From that day on we called you king
we crowned you with honors, Oedipus, towering over all—mighty king of the seven gates of Thebes. 1330
But now to hear your story—is there a man more agonized?
More wed to pain and frenzy? Not a man on earth, the joy of your life ground down to nothing
O Oedipus, name for the ages—
One and the same wide harbor served you 1335 son and father both son and father came to rest in the same bridal chamber.
How, how could the furrows your father plowed bear you, your agony, harrowing on in silence O so long? 1340
But now for all your power
Time, all-seeing Time has dragged you to the light, judged your marriage monstrous from the start—the son and the father tangling, both one—O child of Laius, would to god
I'd never seen you, never never! 1345
Now I weep like a man who wails the dead and the dirge comes pouring forth with all my heart!
I tell you the truth, you gave me life
my breath leapt up in you and now you bring down night upon my eyes. 1350

(Enter a MESSENGER from the palace.)

MESSENGER: Men of Thebes, always first in honor, what horrors you will hear, what you will see,
 what a heavy weight of sorry you will shoulder...
 if you are true to your birth, if you still have 1355 some feeling for the royal house of Thebes.
 I tell you neither the waters of the Danube nor the Nile can wash this palace clean.
 Such things it hides, it soon will bring to light—terrible things, and none done blindly now, 1360 all done with a will. The pains
 we inflict upon ourselves hurt most of all.
 LEADER: God knows we have pains enough already.
 What can you add to them?
 MESSENGER: The queen is dead.
 LEADER: Poor lady—how?
 1365 MESSENGER: By her own hand. But you are spared the worst,
 you never had to watch... I saw it all,
 and with all the memory that's in me
 you will learn what that poor woman suffered.

Once she'd broken in through the gates, 1370 dashing past us, frantic, whipped to fury, ripping her hair out with both hands—straight to her rooms she rushed, flinging herself across the bridal-bed, doors slamming behind her—once inside, she wailed for Laius, dead so long, 1375 remembering how she bore his child long ago,
 the life that rose up to destroy him, leaving its mother to mother living creatures with the very son she'd borne.
 Oh how she wept, mourning the marriage-bed 1380 where she let loose that double brood—monsters—husband by her husband, children by her child.
 And then—
 But how she died is more than I can say. Suddenly Oedipus burst in, screaming, he stunned us so we couldn't watch her agony to the end, 1385 our eyes were fixed on him. Circling like a maddened beast, stalking, here, there, crying out to us—
 Give him a sword! His wife, no wife, his mother, where can he find the mother earth that cropped two crops at once, himself and all his children?
 1390 He was raging—one of the dark powers pointing the way, none of us mortals crowding around him, no, with a great shattering cry—someone, something leading him on—he hurled at the twin doors and bending the bolts back out of their sockets, crashed through the chamber.
 1395 And there we saw the woman hanging by the neck, Cradled high in a woven noose, spinning, swinging back and forth. And when he saw her,
 giving a low, wrenching sob that broke our hearts,
 slipping the halter from her throat, he eased her down, 1400 in a slow embrace he laid her down, poor thing...
 then, what came next, what horror we beheld!

He rips off her brooches, the long gold pins holding her robes—and lifting them high, looking straight up into the points,

he digs them down the sockets of his eyes, crying, "You, 1405 you'll see no more the pain I suffered, all the pain I caused!
 Too long you looked on the ones you never should have seen, blind to the ones you longed to see, to know! Blind from this hour on! Blind in the darkness—blind!"
 His voice like a dirge, rising, over and over 1410 raising the pins, raking them down his eyes.
 And at each stroke blood spurts from the roots, splashing his beard, a swirl of it, nerves and clots—
 black hail of blood pulsing, gushing down.

These are the griefs that burst upon them both, 1415 coupling man and woman. The joy they had so lately, the fortune of their old ancestral house was deep joy indeed. Now, in this one day, wailing, madness and doom, death, disgrace, all the griefs in the world that you can name, 1420
 all are theirs forever.

LEADER: Oh poor man, the misery—has he any rest from pain now?

(A voice within, in torment.)

MESSENGER: He's shouting,
 "Loose the bolts, someone, show me to all of Thebes!
 My father's murderer, my mother's—"
 No, I can't repeat it, it's unholy. 1425
 Now, he'll tear himself from his native earth, not linger, curse the house with his own curse.
 But he needs strength, and a guide to lead him on.
 This is sickness more than he can bear.

(The palace doors open.)

Look,
 he'll show you himself. The great doors are opening— 1430 you are about to see a sight, a horror
 even his mortal enemy would pity.

(Enter OEDIPUS, blinded, led by a boy. He stands at the palace steps, as if surveying his people once again.)

CHORUS: Oh, the terror—
 the suffering, for all the world to see,
 the worst terror that ever met my eyes.
 What madness swept over you? What god, 1435
 what dark power leapt beyond all bounds,
 beyond belief, to crush your wretched life?—
 godforsaken, cursed by the gods!
 I pity you but I can't bear to look.
 I've much to ask, so much to learn, 1440
 so much fascinates my eyes, but you... I shudder at the sight.

OEDIPUS: Oh, Ohh—
 the agony! I am agony—
 where am I going? where on earth?
 where does all this agony hurl me? 1445
 where's my voice?—
 winging, swept away on a dark tide—
 My destiny, my dark power, what a leap you made!

CHORUS: To the depths of terror, too dark to hear, to see.
 OEDIPUS: Dark, horror of darkness 1450

my darkness, drowning, swirling around me crashing wave on wave—unspeakable, irresistible headwind, fatal harbor! Oh again, the misery, all at once, over and over 1455 the stabbing daggers, stab of memory raking me insane.
 CHORUS: No wonder you suffer twice over, the pain of your wounds,
 the lasting grief of pain.
 OEDIPUS: Dear friend, still here?
 Standing by me, still with a care for me, 1460 the blind man? Such compassion, loyal to the last. Oh it's you,
 I know you're here, dark as it is I'd know you anywhere, your voice—
 it's yours, clearly yours.
 CHORUS: Dreadful, what you've done..
 1465 How could you bear it, gouging out your eyes?
 What superhuman power drove you on?
 OEDIPUS: Apollo, friends, Apollo—
 he ordained my agonies—these, my pains on pains!
 But the hand that struck my eyes was mine,
 1470 mine alone—no one else—
 I did it all myself!
 What good were eyes to me?
 Nothing I could see could bring me joy.
 CHORUS: No, no, exactly as you say.
 OEDIPUS: What can I ever see?
 1475 What love, what call of the heart can touch my ears with joy? Nothing, friends.
 Take me away, far, far from Thebes, quickly, cast me away, my friends—
 this great murderous ruin, this man cursed to heaven, 1480 the man the deathless gods hate most of all!
 CHORUS: Pitiful, you suffer so, you understand so much...
 I wish you had never known.
 OEDIPUS: Die, die—
 whoever he was that day in the wilds who cut my ankles free of the ruthless pins, 1485 he pulled me clear of death, he saved my life
 for this, this kindness—
 Curse him, kill him!
 If I'd died then, I'd never have dragged myself,
 my loved ones through such hell.
 CHORUS: Oh if only... would to god.
 1490 OEDIPUS: I'd never have come to this,
 my father's murderer—never been branded mother's husband, all men see me now! Now, loathed by the gods, son of the mother I defiled
 coupling in my father's bed, spawning lives in the loins 1495 that spawned my wretched life. What grief can crown this grief?
 It's mine alone, my destiny—I am Oedipus!
 CHORUS: How can I say you've chosen for the best?
 Better to die than be alive and blind.
 OEDIPUS: What I did was best—don't lecture me, 1500 no more advice. I, with my eyes, how could I look my father in the eyes
 when I go down to death? Or mother, so abused...

I have done such things to the two of them,
 Crimes too huge for hanging.
 Worse yet,
 the sight of my children, born as they were born. 1505
 how could I long to look into their eyes?
 No, not with these eyes of mine, never.
 Not this city either, her high towers,
 the sacred glittering images of her gods—
 I am misery! I, her best son, reared 1510
 as no other son of Thebes was ever reared,
 I've stripped myself I gave the command myself.
 All men must cast away the great blasphemer,
 the curse now brought to light by the gods,
 the son of Laius—I, my father's son! 1515

Now I've exposed my guilt, horrendous guilt, could I train a level glance on you, my countrymen?
 Impossible! No, if I could just block off my ears,
 the springs of hearing, I would stop at nothing—
 I'd wall up my loathsome body like a prison, 1520 blind to the sound of life, not just the sight.
 Oblivion—what a blessing...
 for the mind to dwell a world away from pain.

O Cithaeron, why did you give me shelter?
 Why didn't you take me, crush my life out on the spot? 1525
 I'd never have revealed my birth to all mankind.

O Polybus, Corinth, the old house of my fathers, so I believed—what a handsome prince you raised—under the skin, what sickness to the core.
 Look at me! Born of outrage, outrage to the core. 1530
 O triple roads—it all comes back, the secret, dark ravine, and the oaks closing in where the three roads join...
 You drank my father's blood, my own blood spilled by my own hands—you still remember me? 1535
 What things you saw me do? Then I came here and did them all once more!

Marriages! O marriage,
 You gave me birth, and once you brought me into the world,
 you brought my sperm rising back, springing to light fathers, brothers, sons—one murderous breed-- 1540 brides, wives, mothers. The blackest things a man can do, I have done them all!
 No more—
 it's wrong to name what's wrong to do. Quickly, for the love of god, hide me somewhere, kill me, hurl me into the sea 1545
 where you can never look on me again.

(Beckoning to the CHORUS as they shrink away.)

Closer,
 it's all right. Touch the man of grief.
 Do. Don't be afraid. My troubles are mine and I am the only man alive who can sustain them.

(Enter CREON from the palace, attended by palace GUARDS.)

LEADER: Put your requests to Creon. Here he is, 1550 just when we need him. He'll have a plan, he'll act.

Now that he's the sole defense of the country in your place.

OEDIPUS: Oh no, what can I say to him?
How can I ever hope to win his trust?

1555 I wronged him so, just now, in every way.
You must see that—I was so wrong, so wrong.

CREON: I haven't come to mock you, Oedipus, or to criticize your former failings.

(Turning to the GUARDS.)

You there,
have you lost all respect for human feelings?

1560 At least revere the Sun, the holy fire that keeps us all alive. Never expose a thing of guilt and holy dread so great it appalls
the earth, the rain from heaven, the light of day!
Get him into the halls—quickly as you can.

1565 Piety demands no less. Kindred alone should see a kinsman's shame. This is obscene.

OEDIPUS: Please, in god's name... you wipe my fears away, coming so generously to me, the worst of men.
Do one thing more, for your sake, not mine.

1570 CREON: What do you want? Why so insistent?

OEDIPUS: Drive me out of the land at once, far from sight, where I can never hear a human voice.

CREON: I'd have done that already, I promise you.
First I wanted the god to clarify my duties.

1575 OEDIPUS: The god? His command was clear, every word:
death for the father-killer, the curse—
he said destroy me!

CREON: So he did. Still, in such a crisis
it's better to ask precisely what to do.

OEDIPUS: So miserable—

1580 you would consult the god about a man like me?

CREON: By all means. And this time, I assume,
even you will obey the god's decrees.

OEDIPUS: I will,
I will. And you, I command you—I beg you...
the woman inside, bury her as you see fit.

1585 It's the only decent thing,
to give your own the last rites. As for me, never condemn the city of my fathers to house my body, not while I'm alive, no,
let me live on the mountains, on Cithaeron,

1590 my favorite haunt, I have made it famous.
Mother and father marked out that rock to be my everlasting tomb—buried alive.
Let me die there, where they tried to kill me.

Oh but this I know: no sickness can destroy me.

1595 nothing can. I would never have been saved from death—I have been saved for something great and terrible, something strange.
Well let me destiny come and take me on its way!
About my children, Creon, the boys at least,

1600 don't burden yourself. They're men, wherever they go, they'll find the means to live.
But my two daughters, my poor helpless girls, clustering at our table, never without me hovering near them... whatever I touched,

they always had their share. Take care of them, 1605
I beg you. Wait, better—permit me, would you?
Just to touch them with my hands and take our fill of tears. Please... my kind.
Grant it, with all your noble heart.
If I could hold them, just once, I'd think 1610
I had them with me, like the early days when I could see their eyes.

(ANTIGONE and ISMENE, two small children, are led in from the palace by a nurse.)

What's that?
O god! Do I really hear you sobbing?—
my two children. Creon, you've pitied me?
Sent me my darling girls, my own flesh and blood! 1615 Am I right?

CREON: Yes, it's my doing.
I know the joy you must feel now.

OEDIPUS: Bless you, Creon!
May god watch over you for this kindness,
Better than he ever guarded me 1620
Children, where are you?
Here, come quickly—

(Groping for ANTIGONE and ISMENE, who approach their father cautiously, then embrace him.)

Come to these hands of mine, your brother's hands, your own father's hands that served his once bright eyes so well—that made them blind. Seeing nothing, children, knowing nothing, I became your father 1625
I fathered you in the soil that gave me life.

How I weep for you—I cannot see you now...
just thinking of all your days to come, the bitterness,
the life that rough mankind will thrust upon you.
Where are the public gatherings you can join, 1630
the banquets of the clans? Home you'll come, in tears, cut off from the sight of it all,
the brilliant rights unfinished.
And when you reach perfection, ripe for marriage,
Who will he be, my dear ones? Risking it all 1635 to shoulder the curse that weighs down my parents,
yes and you too—that wounds us all together.
What more misery could you want?
Your father killed his father, sowed his mother,
one, one and the selfsame womb sprang you-- 1640
he cropped the very roots of his existence.

Such disgrace, and you must bear it all!
Who will marry you then? Not a man on earth.
Your doom is clear: you'll wither away to nothing, single, without a child. 1645

(Turning to CREON.)

Oh Creon,
you are the only father they have now...
we who brought them into the world are gone, both gone at a stroke—

Don't let them go begging, abandoned, 1650 women without men. Your own flesh and blood!
Never bring them down to the level of my pains.
Pity them. Look at them, so young, so vulnerable, shorn of everything—you're their only hope.
Promise me, noble Creon, touch my hand!

(Reaching toward CREON, who draws back.)

1655 You, little ones, if you were old enough to understand, there is much I'd tell you.
Now, as it is, I'd have you say a prayer.
Pray for life, my children,
live where you are free to grow and season.

1660 Pray god you find a better life than mine,
the father who begot you.

CREON: Enough.

You've wept enough. Into the palace now.

OEDIPUS: I must, but I find it very hard.

CREON: Time is the great healer, you will see.

1665 OEDIPUS: I am going—you know on what condition?

CREON: Tell me. I'm listening.

OEDIPUS: Drive me out of Thebes, in exile.

CREON: Not I. Only the gods can give you that.

OEDIPUS: Surely the gods hate me so much—

1670 CREON: You'll get your wish at once.

OEDIPUS: You consent?

CREON: I try to say what I mean; it's my habit.

OEDIPUS: Then take me away. It's time.

CREON: Come along, let go of the children.

OEDIPUS: No—

don't take them away from me, not now! No no no!

(Clutching his daughters as the GUARDS wrench them loose and take them through the palace doors.)

CREON: Still the king, the master of all things? 1675

No more: here your power ends.

None of your power follows you through life.

(Exit OEDIPUS and CREON to the palace. The CHORUS comes forward to address the audience directly.)

CHORUS: People of Thebes, my countrymen, look on Oedipus.

He solved the famous riddle with his brilliance,

he rose to power, a man beyond all power. 1680

Who could behold his greatness without envy?

Now what a black sea of terror has overwhelmed him.

Now as we keep our watch and wait the final day, count no man happy till he dies, free of pain at last.

(Exit in procession.)
